

Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR) presents

CALL FOR PAPERS

Workshop in the Economics of Religion

October 28-29, 2022

Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research

Organizers: Ran Abramitzky and Jared Rubin

SIEPR will host a workshop on the Economics of Religion on October 28-29, 2022. Organizers Ran Abramitzky and Jared Rubin seek submissions at the intersection of religion and economics/political science/sociology. We will accept 12 submissions for the program.

SUBMISSION INSTRUCTIONS

To submit a proposal for consideration please email a title and an abstract of up to 500 words to ires@chapman.edu by May 13, 2022. Completed papers will be due on September 30, 2022.

Submission Deadline
May 13, 2022

Acceptance Date
June 17, 2022

Completed Papers
September 30, 2022

A grant generously funded by the John Templeton Foundation will provide an honorarium that will more than cover all travel expenses for all participants who are selected. Chapman University's Institute for the Study of Religion, Economics, and Society will cover lodging expenses.